Waterman's
The Store of Quality

"The Real Man's Store."

Change of Denomination.

The collector of bridge tolls in a Scottish border town was quite a character in his way. Upon one occasion a large party of American clergymen, who were visiting Scotland, came to survey the classic Borderland. The end of the bridge bears a notice that not more than ten people are allowed on it at once, but the clerics chose to disregard this, and went on in a body. The collector saw them from his little sentry box, and rushed out. "Back off that bridge!" he shouted, but unused to such tones the clerics pressed on. "Back off that bridge!" shouted the collector again.

"But, my good man," expostulated the foremost, "do you know that we are members of the Pan-Presbyterian congress?"

"Ye may call yourselves Pan-Presbyterian or pot-Presbyterian," roared the collector, "but if ye no gang aff that bridge ye'll be a' Baptists in twa meenits."

The Youth of Athens.

When Athens gave every fourth block to her children and youth for the gymnasium and the playground, she built bodies of silk and steel, and great men walked up and down her streets in regiments, and her health bloomed in the orations of Demosthenes, and the essays of Plato and the marbles of Phidias. Just as soon as the race and the body began to deteriorate, Athens went to pieces. This has been the story, also, of Ephesus, and Corinth, and Venice.—Newell Dwight Hillis.

Catching Mrs. Jones

If Mrs. Jones buys her coffee at Smith's each week—

If the coffee in your store is better than Smith's and cheaper—

Why, TELL MRS. JONES!

Don't dash wildly across the street to tell her, though; she'd laugh at you. Insert a sane, forceful advertisement in this paper about your coffee.

We'll catch her eye by making your ad. attractive. Then all that is left for you to do is to take in the money for the coffee Mrs. Jones buys.
